“So Doctor, let me make sure I’m getting it right, these miniaturized robotic ‘hell spiders’ first invade the lower abdomen and then digest it from within. And you’re promoting this invention as a cure for melancholia?”

“Yes, you’ve got it exactly. A cure for melancholia – we say ‘depression’ now of course – and for a variety of related conditions.”

“Related to what?”

“To having a lower abdomen, primarily,” he laughed.

It was not much of a joke.
